HUMAN TRAFFICKING

OVERVIEW

Human trafficking is a crime involving the exploitation of someone for the purposes of compelled labor or a commercial sex act through the use of force, fraud, or coercion. Human trafficking affects individuals across the world, including here in the United States, and is commonly regarded as one of the most pressing human rights issues of our time. Human trafficking affects every community in the United States across age, gender, ethnicity, and socio-economic backgrounds.

As defined under North Dakota and U.S. law, victims of human trafficking can be divided into three populations:

- Children under age 18 induced into commercial sex.
- Adults aged 18 or over induced into commercial sex through force, fraud, or coercion.
- Children and adults induced to perform labor or services through force, fraud, or coercion.

FORMS OF TRAFFICKING

Sex trafficking is the recruitment, harboring, transportation, provision, obtaining, patronizing, or soliciting of a person for the purposes of a commercial sex act, in which the commercial sex act is induced by force, fraud, or coercion, or in which the person induced to perform such an act has not attained 18 years of age (22 USC § 7102).

Labor trafficking is the recruitment, harboring, transportation, provision, or obtaining of a person for labor or services, through the use of force, fraud, or coercion for the purposes of subjection to involuntary servitude, peonage, debt bondage, or slavery (22 USC § 7102).

EXPLOITATION VS. TRAFFICKING

Exploitation is the exchange of a sex or labor act for money, shelter, drugs, or anything of value, between two parties. This includes survival sex, stripping, sextortion, pornography, and numerous fields of work.

- A youth runs away from home or is kicked out of their home, and someone offers them a “safe” place to stay in exchange for a sexual act. That is survival sex.
- An individual works for a business in exchange for shelter, which may be shared with other individuals.
- A youth is coerced into sending a nude photo to someone via social media and that person blackmails the youth, forcing them to provide additional photos.

Trafficking is exploitation involving force, fraud or coercion, or is facilitating the exploitation of a minor victim. A party acts as a trafficker, using force, fraud or coercion to procure sex or labor acts for themselves, or a purchaser. The party profiting from the act is the trafficker.

- Parents cannot afford rent and the landlord agrees to waive rent in exchange for a sexual act from the child. Those parents are now the traffickers.
- A teen’s boy/girlfriend coerces them to have sex with their friends in exchange for money, drugs, a new cell phone, clothing, etc. That boy/girlfriend is their trafficker.
- An employer forces an employee to work long hours for little/no pay, withholds payment, falsely claims that the employee owes money to the employer, and physically abuses and threatens the life of the employee, telling them that if they leave or report the exploitation, their family will be harmed. This is a form of labor trafficking.

TRAFFICKING IN NORTH DAKOTA

HISTORY

In response to the presence of human trafficking in North Dakota, a Human Trafficking Commission was created by the 64th Legislative Assembly and established within the Office of Attorney General. N.D.C.C. § 54-12-33. The Commission was originally charged with developing a coordinated and comprehensive plan to provide victims with services; collecting and evaluating data on human trafficking in this state and promoting public awareness about human trafficking, victim remedies and services, and trafficking prevention. During the 65th ND Legislative Assembly, the authority and duties of the Commission were narrowed in order to focus on the collection and evaluation of data, and to promote public awareness on human trafficking and victim services. The Attorney General's office partners with the federal North Dakota Human Trafficking Task Force on these efforts.

HUMAN TRAFFICKING: VICTIM TREATMENT AND SUPPORT SERVICES FUNDING

The 66th Legislative Assembly approved an appropriation of $1.4 million to organizations involved in providing prevention and treatment services to human trafficking victims. The appropriated funds were awarded through an open, competitive process to organizations that demonstrated involvement in providing prevention and treatment services related to human trafficking victims, in coordination with state and local governments.

The grant award period commenced on September 1, 2019 and continues through June 30, 2021. Additional information on the grantees can be found on the Criminal Justice Resources page of the Attorney General's website.

NORTH DAKOTA HUMAN TRAFFICKING TASK FORCE

Since 2015, the Attorney General and the Human Trafficking Commission have been working closely with the North Dakota Human Trafficking Task Force (NDHTTF) to build a coordinated response to human trafficking in the state. The NDHTTF was founded in late 2015 through the North Dakota Office of Attorney General, CAWS North Dakota (CAWS ND), and the U.S. Attorney's Office in North Dakota (USAO), with First Nations Women's Alliance (FNWA) added to executive leadership in 2017.

OVERVIEW OF NDHTTF

The North Dakota Human Trafficking Task Force is a collaborative team made up of law enforcement, prosecution, and service providers at federal, state, and local levels. We respond to victims of sex and labor trafficking, providing comprehensive services, investigating traffickers and solicitors, and prosecuting offenders. The NDHTTF is the nexus for a network of law enforcement and service providers to work in tandem to build capacity and combat trafficking statewide.

We do this through the following methods: train communities to identify exploitation and trafficking and provide points of contact upon identification, train local multidisciplinary teams to respond to victims and investigate trafficking-related crime, assist response agencies and communities with development of response protocol, provide technical assistance to local response teams upon request, run operations and investigate trafficking related crime, prosecute offenders and provide victims with restitution, engage in national anti-trafficking best practices and sharing of resources, and build networks for victims to access services and resources.

The North Dakota Human Trafficking Task Force is a statewide, multidisciplinary collaboration of law enforcement, service providers, and prosecution, established to work in a victim-centered manner to prevent, detect, disrupt, and dismantle human trafficking through coordinated, comprehensive services and efficient investigation and prosecution.

The core of the NDHTTF model involves three components: 1) Multi-disciplinary teams across the state (operating in 9 communities) that provide immediate response to trafficked individuals; 2) A task force Director, Grant Tech, and Operational Team coordinating the activities of the task force and providing training and technical assistance to the local MDTs; and 3) Five subcommittees including Law Enforcement, Legal, Tribal Engagement, Labor Trafficking, and Victim Services, help drive progress in developing best practices, solving common problems, and facilitating cooperation across the state.

The NDHTTF also developed a Human Trafficking Fund that is accessible to agencies across the state to support victims of sex and labor trafficking. Funding is accessed by completing a request form outlining the type of trafficking, basic demographic information, and a brief description of the client's need related to trafficking. This funding provides services to victims throughout their recovery process, from the moment someone is recovered through their steps toward self-sufficiency. These services fall into one of the following categories:

Immediate Response/Relief

basic needs items, emergency food assistance, medical care, emergency shelter

Recovery

therapeutic/mental health services, transitional housing, legal services

Resilience

education, job training, life-skill building (finances, self-care, etc.)

DEMAND REDUCTION PROGRAM

Demand Reduction Programs (DRPs), sometimes referred to as “John Schools”, are targeted at reducing recidivism rates for participants. These programs target the buyers of sex instead of targeting the seller. DRPs educate participants on the impact of prostitution and sex trafficking on communities, survivors, spouses, and children.

“I have learned a great deal about human trafficking from this class, it has been an eye opener for me.”

- Demand Reduction Program Participant

The Human Trafficking Commission’s Demand Reduction Committee worked with the University of Mary to create a comprehensive intermediate sentencing, diversion, and education option for ND offenders charged with purchasing prostitution. The program was rolled out in July of 2017. The educational courses are offered quarterly, and are held in the following communities, as need dictates: Fargo, Bismarck, Grand Forks, Watford City, or Minot. Since the inception of the program, fifteen offenders have completed the program. Attendees ranged in age from 20-52 years old.

To increase awareness about the program among judges, attorneys, and law enforcement officers, the Demand Reduction Program Coordinator conducts outreach and education to individuals around the state, reaching over 1,500 people in 2019. As a result, there has been an increase in referrals to the program through law enforcement, probation officers, and prosecutors recommending the DRP as a sentencing option for judges.

NORTH DAKOTA BY THE NUMBERS

Since its inception in 2015, the NDHTTF has trained communities to identify signs of trafficking, provided response and advocacy for victims, and investigated and prosecuted crimes related to trafficking.

IN 2019, THE NDHTTF

- Served 114 victims of human trafficking—76 adults, and 38 children; 74 were North Dakotans
- Continued services to 83 victims from 2016
- Investigated 33 cases of human sex trafficking, 1 case of labor trafficking resulting in 21 victims being identified.
- Three (3) arrests were made and 3 cases were prosecuted with 3 resulting in pleas or convictions.
- Trained 3,506 professionals on human trafficking identification
- Held 310 community-based response meetings to combat human trafficking

482 victims of
human trafficking

➤ 349 adults 133 children

TRAINED MORE THAN 13,700 PEOPLE

Trainers reported the single target audience of each training and the number of people in attendance from that group. This chart displays the top 10 audiences reached by percentage.

*Of trainings focused on "other" target audiences, most reached unknown/unreported audiences, potential homes for survivors, or students

There are more people affected by trafficking and exploitation in North Dakota than current data reflects. The NDHTTF is the only statewide organization currently compiling comprehensive data around human trafficking in the state. Victims served by agencies outside of the NDHTTF may not be reflected in current data.

LOOKING FORWARD

The NDHTTF utilizes these goals to guide their focus in the fight against human trafficking.

Goal 1: Support diverse and accessible programming to sustain long-term independence for survivors of labor and sex trafficking.

Objectives:

- Increase number of clients transitioning to long-term independence
- Develop innovative, culturally appropriate approaches to serving victims
- Identify and provide more accessible and affordable treatment options/facilities
- Identify labor trafficking and enhance services provided for labor trafficking victims

Goal 2: Implement effective evaluation systems to secure multiple streams of funding and ensure data-driven equitable policies.

Objectives:

- Adapt data collection system to ensure accuracy for reporting and interpretation
- Secure sustainable funding utilizing reliable data

Goal 3: Create a collaborative and efficient team throughout ND communities.

Objectives:

- Identify resources and plan to provide service and investigation in rural and tribal areas
- Establish, or maintain MDT meetings
- Conduct outreach operations with key community partners

Goal 4: Justice for victims through offender prosecution and accountability.

Objectives:

- Increase, and track, number of successful prosecutions
- Consistent charging and sentencing within judicial system
- Train judicial system

Goal 5: Increased awareness, understanding, and prevention through education.

Objectives:

- Provide prioritized education and outreach to communities and sectors, based on data
- Conduct outreach operations with key community partners

SUCCESS STORY

The NDHTTF is grateful to have the consent of a client to share her story of trafficking for the Commission report. This testimonial demonstrates the need for ongoing prevention, service provision, and investigation for trafficking clients throughout the state. The NDHTTF is grateful to the survivor for her bravery in recounting her experience to better inform the public on human trafficking.

As reported by a North Dakota human trafficking case manager with her client's consent:

The client grew up on the Turtle Mountain Reservation in a home that was riddled with dysfunction, mental health issues, chemical dependency and domestic violence. She was abused physically by both parents, and at age six was sexually abused and sold to other men by her father and grandfather. Often, she would be given to other men in exchange for alcohol. The client faced other trauma while growing up, sharing stories of her home burning down and believes that her mother set the fire, but it was determined to be accidental. The client also remembers her relatives often talking about the disappearance of other women on the reservation.

When she was in early elementary school, she remembers her aunts and her mother talking and hearing them discussing that an acquaintance had been raped. The women did not say the word, rather they spelled it R-A-P-E, so that she would not hear the word. The client shared that she memorized those letters and then asked her grandmother what R-A-P-E means. The client noted she had her first boyfriend when she was 16, and every subsequent relationship with an intimate partner involved mistreatment and abuse. In her first relationship with a boyfriend, he became upset with her and punched her in the mouth, knocking her tooth out. She doesn't ever recall a romantic relationship that did not involve violence.

As an adult, the client decided to leave North Dakota and move to another state to get away from her past and trauma. She resided for several years in another state and had a professional level career. It was while she was working, that she began to have a romantic relationship with her boss, who would eventually become her husband and her trafficker. She was "in the life" for several years, and was able to escape from her situation when her trafficker was sentenced to prison on other charges. The client quit her job and lived off of her retirement account money; she ran out of money and ended up homeless.

The client chose to move back to the Turtle Mountain Reservation in North Dakota, to begin her healing process, and reconnect with her family and roots. She stayed with her brother in his home, and shared that the house was in disrepair and was in a condition that was not healthy for human occupancy. Although the client values her heritage and has a strong desire to advocate for Native women, she realized that living on the reservation was not the right fit for her and she came to Fargo. She used nature and cultural teachings to begin her emotional healing.

Shortly after seeking shelter at the YWCA, the client disclosed that she was a victim of human trafficking. She began to participate in the human trafficking program at the YWCA, and was eventually moved into a private apartment connected to the shelter, designated for human trafficking victims. The client continued to address her trauma through nature and cultural practices, but also incorporated talk therapy and advocacy through the Rape and Abuse Crisis Center.

Working with the YWCA Education and Employment coordinator, the client secured all of her documents (state ID/Driver's License, Social Security Card and Birth Certificate) and a part-time job. She worked with the YWCA Human Trafficking Advocate and was approved for the YWCA Housing and Stabilization Program, moving into her own apartment 80 days after entering the shelter. The client continues to receive supportive services through all service providers at the YWCA, as well as RACC. The client is thriving and living independently. In addition to her employment, the client is active in community advocacy for Native American Women and human rights issues.

CONCLUSION

The Attorney General's Office and the North Dakota Human Trafficking Task Force continue to work together to shed light on the state of human trafficking in North Dakota. Turning the tide on exploitation and trafficking will take the continued attention and commitment of our elected leaders, law enforcement and non-profit partners. The Attorney General's Office urges elected officials, non-profit leaders, federal partners and all law enforcement jurisdictions to remain steadfast in their commitment to working collaboratively to end human trafficking in North Dakota.
