

Metro/State news

Around the Twin Cities

Minneapolis/4 of 10 suspects in cocaine arrest plead guilty; another fails to appear

Four of the 10 people indicted in connection with a major cocaine arrest in Bloomington pleaded guilty Monday in federal court in Minneapolis. A fifth person, John Ochoa-Crespo, failed to appear for trial.

U.S. District Judge James Rosenbaum issued a warrant for the arrest of Ochoa-Crespo and ordered the forfeiture of the $150,000 bail that he had posted. Ochoa-Crespo, 24, of New York City, was to have been in court yesterday for jury selection in the case of the other defendants.

Opening arguments in the case are to begin today. Facing trial are Rubiel Marin, 40, of Kenilworth, N.J., and four New York City residents: Dairo Jesus Rios, 32; Leonardo Santana, 27; German Rios, 34, and Gonzalo Giraldo, 38.

Those who entered guilty pleas yesterday were Karen Bordonaro, 44; Martha Sanchez, 34, and Donald Sabella, 60, all of New York City, and Helbert Betancourt, 34, who is from Virginia.

Bordonaro pleaded guilty to conspiracy to distribute cocaine. The plea agreement calls for a prison term of no more than 10 years, and five other counts will be dismissed.

Sanchez also pleaded guilty to conspiracy to distribute cocaine and also faces up to 10 years in prison. Sabella pleaded guilty to interstate travel to promote unlawful activity and will have three counts dismissed. His prison term will not exceed five years.

Betancourt pleaded guilty to aiding and abetting distribution of cocaine and will serve up to 10 years in prison.

Authorities said 84 pounds of cocaine were seized in September from the group in Bloomington after it was brought by car from New York. Marin allegedly was the group's leader.

St. Paul/2 charged in stabbing of couple

Two St. Paul men have been charged in last Wednesday's stabbing of an East Side couple in their home.

James Warren Gear Jr., 18, 888 E. Lawson Av., was charged with attempted aggravated robbery Monday. He is being held in the Ramsey County jail in lieu of $30,000 bail. Dennis Lee Knutson, 20, of 920 Case Av., was charged earlier with aggravated assault. He is being held in lieu of $10,000 bail.

According to a complaint filed in Ramsey County District Court, the two had planned to rob the home of Susan Hanna and Steven Robideaux. Knutson told authorities that Gear believed that marijuana was in the house.

Hanna let the men in, but once inside Gear apparently began stabbing her and Robideaux, Knutson said. He told authorities that the knife was supposed to be used only to frighten the couple.

The men ran out without taking anything, authorities said.

Hanna was listed in serious condition yesterday at St. Paul-Ramsey Medical Center.

Robideaux was discharged after hospital treatment last week.

St. Paul/Burned man in serious condition

A man who was severely burned early Saturday in a fire at his St. Paul record store was in serious condition Monday at St. Paul-Ramsey Medical Center.

Leon Harut, 55, suffered second-degree burns on his face and third-degree burns on his legs after a woman reportedly threw gasoline in his living quarters in the back of Sensational Records, 625 W. University Av.

A woman was arrested by St. Paul police and was being held on suspicion of arson.

St. Paul/More snowbirds to be towed away

St. Paul snowbirds, beware. City officials say that if you leave your car illegally parked during a snow emergency this winter your chances of getting towed are almost certain.

"We will be heavily towing this year, substantially over what we've done in past years," street maintenance engineer Al Shekta said. "People's tolerance levels have been reached."

Information compiled from news service reports.

Complaint alleges NSP has bias against blacks

A complaint filed with the U.S. Department of Labor alleges that Northern States Insurance has discriminated against blacks by not hiring or promoting them.

From one man's referral of more than 30 blacks for jobs with NSP in the past nine years, only one was hired as a temporary, part-time worker, the complaint alleges. The part-time worker was laid off after several months, while "a number of white men" were hired for similar jobs and later while many were given permanent jobs, the complaint says.

The selection process for promotions also is "extremely vulnerable to bias and is obviously arbitrary due to its subjectivity," the complaint says.

The complaint, dated last Wednesday, was signed by four individuals.

A spokesman for NSP said yesterday that the company hadn't seen a copy of the complaint.

"When we get it, we will review it," said Sam Macaulus, a spokesman.

To cut down on the number of parked cars getting in the way of plows, the city will use 25 to 30 tow trucks to move illegally parked cars to the newly expanded city impoundment lot on Barge Channel Rd., authorities said.

A ticket for anyone whose car gets towed will cost $25, and getting the car from the impoundment lot will cost another $65 or $70, Shekta said.

"We are an equal opportunity employer. We do have an affirmative action policy that we follow." Contrary to the complaint, he said, NSP's affirmative action policy is active and ensures that all job applicants and employees are treated equally.

NSP has an outreach program with community groups in recruiting minority workers, Macaulus said. It also offers a scholarship at Dakota County Vocational Technical Institute, where eight women and minority students get tuition and equipment for training to become utility line workers, he said.

The U.S. Department of Labor's regional office in Chicago will process the complaint to determine whether the department has jurisdiction over NSP, according to Zelma Neely, a complaint monitor with the department's office of federal contract compliance programs.

Before the department investigates, the complaint must be determined to be a class-action matter.

HMO critics pack hearing room

By Maura Lerner
Staff Writer

Two busloads of people from St. Cloud packed a legislative hearing at the State Capitol Monday as critics blasted local HMOs for dropping Medicare patients in rural Minnesota.

Advocates for Medicare patients, surrounded by a standing-room-only crowd, asked legislators to help the people who have been displaced, as well as to prevent health maintenance organizations from taking similar action in the future.

"The amount of anxiety and despair that's been caused by this action is very, very difficult to convey," said Donna Walberg, executive director of the Central Minnesota Council on Aging in St. Cloud.

The hearing, sponsored jointly by the Senate insurance and health subcommittees, was prompted by complaints about the decisions of four HMOs to drop rural Medicare patients because they were unprofitable. According to revised figures from the Health Department, nearly 24,600 people in 28 rural counties will lose HMO coverage at the end of December.

Medicare coverage, many are having trouble finding supplemental insurance to help pay the sizable bills that Medicare won't cover, witnesses said. And they have only 16 days before expiration of their HMO coverage, which covered 100 percent of their health bills.

"We just came down ... to make HMOs continued on page 4B

Although all of the patients still have

Faithful pay respects to dying building

Seminary to build anew

By Joe Kimball
Staff Writer

The old administration building at St. Paul Seminary — a 93-year-old building designed by Cass Gilbert and paid for by James J. Hill — was honored Monday afternoon by seminary students, staff, alumni and friends.

The building at 2260 Summit Av. is scheduled to be torn down, beginning today, to make way for a new administration building and residence.

A prayer service was held in the building yesterday, followed by reflections from priests who had studied at the seminary.

A 12-foot-high gold cross was then removed from the top of the four-story building. The cross, which has been a landmark in the neighborhood, will be incorporated into the new construction at the seminary.

"I'm sad to see it go. The building holds a lot of memories," said the Rev. Charles Froehle, rector of the school. "It's a gracious old building. It reflects that late 19th-century style of architecture. But it's worn out."

The building was part of the original seminary, paid for by railroad magnate Hill at the urging of Archbishop John Ireland. It was designed by Gilbert, architect of the State Capitol.

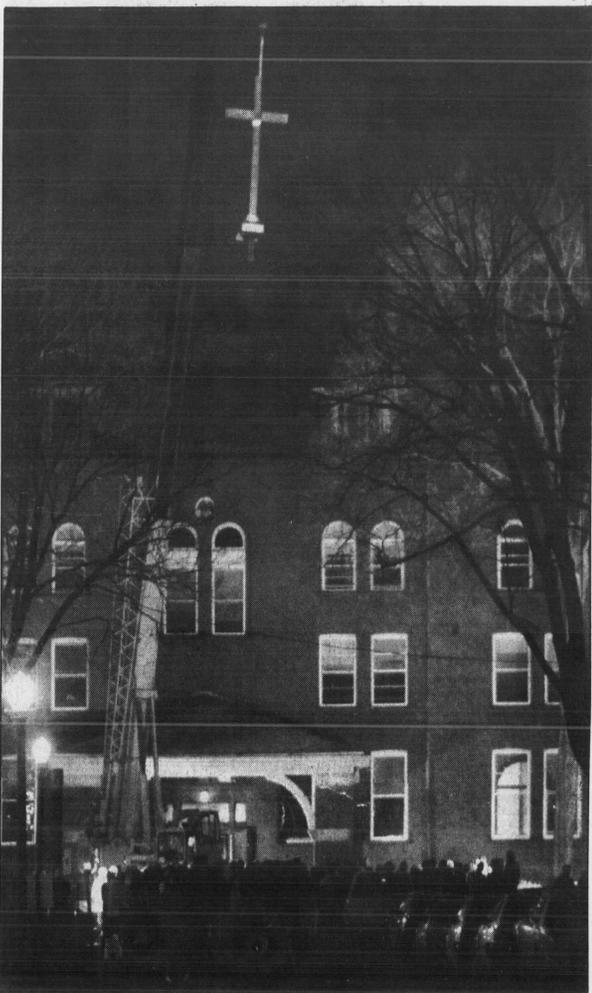

Froehle said the administration building "bears something of a resemblance to an old railroad station — probably to reflect the way (Hill) earned his living." When built in 1894, it cost $26,000.

When the building is gone, only three of the seminary's original buildings will remain, Froehle said. Two are dormitories; the other, the other, a former gymnasium, now houses the power plant.

The administration building was a priests' residence for many years. But it had become more of a central gathering place for students and faculty, Froehle said. "It certainly has survived a whole time of change in the church," he said.

The seminary, which had been independent, became affiliated this year with the nearby College of St. Thomas. The seminary is now operated as the college's School of Divinity.

The college owns 25 acres of the seminary's original 32-acre campus. The new administration building and residence will be built on the remaining seven acres, in the northwest corner of the original campus.

Staff Photo by Brian Peterson

A gold cross was removed from St. Paul Seminary's administration building, which will be demolished.

About 95 percent of the priests in the St. Paul-Minneapolis Archdiocese are graduates of the seminary, Froehle said. There are currently 123 seminarians from 18 dioceses and three foreign countries enrolled in the school.

Kludt guilty in sex case, gets 'informal' probation

By Larry Oakes
Staff Writer

After an unusual 20-minute court hearing Monday in St. Paul, state Rep. Kenneth Kludt was found guilty by a judge of trying to buy sex and was sentenced to a year of "informal" probation.

His attorney, Davis Ayers, said Kludt's probation is informal because he won't have to report to a probation officer.

"I am not blaming anyone but myself for the choices I've made," said Kludt. DFL-Moorhead, to Ramsey County District Judge Donald Gross before the sentencing. "No one but me made the choice to let that lady into my car."

Kludt's deferred sentence, which includes an opportunity to ask after a year that his conviction be expunged, is not unheard of but is lighter than most sentences for prostitution, said Jerome Hendrickson, an assistant St. Paul city attorney. "The vast majority end up with convictions," he argued in court. "I don't believe a year of imposition would be appropriate."

Kludt's attorney, David Ayers, had argued that Kludt, 38, already has been punished severely by public exposure of his case.

"He's been totally overwhelmed and devastated by this matter," Ayers told Gross. "He's embarrassed and ridiculed in front of friends and family. He decided not to run for reelection, he's lost business and probably will continue to lose business. And his family? He may be losing them, too."

Kludt, a freshman legislator and lawyer, said he started counseling in July and attends Alcoholics Anonymous meetings as a result of his arrest. He is married and has four children ranging in age from 1 to 5 years.

Conditions of Kludt's probation include payment of $400 in court costs; orders to continue counseling and a prohibition against going to St. Paul's

Kludt continued on page 4B

Robbinsdale woman's conviction upheld in daughter's death

By Steve Brandt
Staff Writer

The Minnesota Court of Appeals has upheld a Robbinsdale woman's second-degree murder conviction in the 1986 death of her 2-year-old daughter.

Janet Ostlund was sentenced to nine years in prison after her conviction for unintentionally causing the child's death by shaking her. She maintained that the child died in a fall from a couch onto a linoleum floor.

In a decision to be filed today, the appeals court said that a murder conviction may be based on circumstantial evidence when the only inferences from that evidence point to guilt.

A dozen physicians, including medical examiners, called as witnesses during the nine-day trial were divided on the question of whether Maria Ostlund was violently shaken or fell.

Janet Ostlund's attorneys argued that prosecution experts offered insufficient medical opinion to prove the death was a homicide. But the appeals court upheld the trial court's determination that the state's witnesses qualified as experts.

The appeals court also rejected five other grounds for the appeal.

However, Justice Gary Crippen dissented. He said the trial court erred in allowing several friends and relatives to give what he called highly prejudicial evidence against Ostlund's relationship with her daughter and other children.

Crippen said that testimony and the conflicting medical opinion created an extremely close case that should require a new trial.

In other cases:

The appeals court threw out a portion of the sentence, but not the conviction, of Michael Leo Frank of Minneapolis for his part in the 1986 kidnapping and rape of a teen-age girl who was left nude in a Rice County cornfield.

Frank cooperated with police and identified one of two other participants in the attack. Frank was sentenced to 13½ years in prison for kidnapping and first-degree criminal sexual misconduct, and three years for second-degree assault.

His sentence was more than 3½ times the recommended sentence under the state's sentencing guidelines. His attorney contended that Frank should not have received more than a doubling of the recommended sentence.

Although the appeals court disagreed with that reasoning, it said that because the sentences stemmed from a single episode, separate sentences were not permissible.

The court upheld disciplinary action taken by the Minnesota Board of Medical Examiners against Dr. Rodger Kollmorgen for overprescribing drugs for a patient. That occurred when he was medical director and staff psychiatrist for the Five-County Mental Health Center in Brahm, in Isanti County.

The board reprimanded Kollmorgen and fined him $1,000.

The appeals court rejected Kollmorgen's argument that there was insufficient evidence against him.

The weather /

Twin Cities forecast /

Today / Snow with north winds at 20 to 30 miles per hour. High 23.

Tonight / Cloudy and breezy with occasional flurries. Low 14.

Wednesday / Cloudy and breezy with occasional flurries. High 22.

Extended / Partly cloudy through Saturday. Highs 21-25. Lows 5-10.

Twin Cities /

(at Minneapolis-St. Paul International Airport through 11 p.m. yesterday)

Temperature /	Last	Average
Monday	25	37
High	25	37
Low	19	20

Today's record high 49 in 1923
Today's record low -21 in 1901

Yesterday's hourly readings /

High/Low	8 a.m./21	5 p.m./24
1 a.m./24	9 a.m./22	5 p.m./24
2 a.m./24	10 a.m./23	6 p.m./24
3 a.m./24	11 a.m./23	7 p.m./24
4 a.m./23	Noon/24	8 p.m./23
5 a.m./23	1 p.m./25	9 p.m./23
6 a.m./22	2 p.m./24	10 p.m./22
7 a.m./19	3 p.m./24	11 p.m./22

Heating degree days / Dec. 13

1981	1986	Average
Daily	38	56
Season	2021	2383

Precipitation /

24 hours to 6 p.m. yesterday	Trace
Month to Dec. 13	7.5
Above/below average	+3.6
Year to Dec. 13	31.66
Above/below average	+5.81

Today's snowfall record

7.0 in 1902

Snowfall /

24 hours to 6 p.m. yesterday	Trace
Season to Dec. 13	6.8

Regional forecasts /

Minnesota /
Snow today. Highs mostly in the 20s. Breezy tonight and Wednesday with occasional flurries.

Wisconsin /
Snow today with blowing and drifting. High temperatures 25 to 35. Snow diminishing tonight. Lows 15 to 25. Chance of flurries Wednesday.

Iowa /
Snow continuing tonight. Highs in the 20s. Lows 5 to 15. Partly sunny Wednesday.

North Dakota /
Light snow today. Highs 15 to 20. Partly to mostly cloudy tonight and Wednesday. Lows tonight zero to 10. Highs Wednesday 10 to 17.

South Dakota /
Snow today, mainly southeast. Highs 20 to 30. Lows 10 below to 8 above. Partly cloudy Wednesday. Highs 24 to 34.

Yesterday's temps /

Minnesota	Precip.	L/H
Alexandria	T	15/20
Duluth	T	19/23
Grand Marais	T	25/32
Hibbing	T	18/21
International Falls	T	19/21
Redwood Falls	—	16/23
Rochester	T	22/24
St. Cloud	T	15/24

Wisconsin	Latin America
Eau Claire	22/25
Green Bay	17/32
La Crosse	26/27
Madison	27/28
Port Kalamazoo	24/27
Wausau	24/31
Iowa
Des Moines	25/43

World

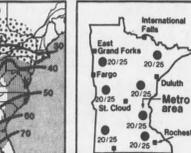

City	L/H
Amsterdam	28/36
Athens	46/54
Beijing	19/45
Berlin	21/28
Bombay	68/77
Buenos Aires	50/60
Calcutta	68/75
Chicago	22/32
Hankou	50/60
Hong Kong	57/66
London	51/67
Manila	70/88
Moscow	-4/-2
New Delhi	50/68
Paris	29/33
Rome	43/48
Sao Paulo	27/39
Stockholm	—/—
Sydney	63/77
Tel Aviv	55/64
Tokyo	32/36
Warsaw	25/30
Winnipeg	8/20

Today's weather

High temperatures/Precipitation/

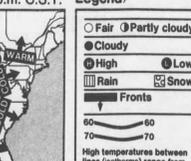

Minnesota highs/

Fronts/High-Low pressure/8p.m. C.S.T.

Legend/

Travelers forecasts /

City	Thurs	Fri	Sat
Boston	0/24/36	0/21/33	0/18/32
N.Y.	0/32/40	0/24/35	0/22/33
D.C.	0/29/43	0/28/41	0/28/38
Atlanta	0/28/55	0/27/54	0/25/53
Orlando	0/55/74	0/58/76	0/64/78
Chicago	0/15/24	0/16/25	0/17/27
K.C.	0/22/35	0/23/36	0/25/38
Dallas	0/30/54	0/33/56	0/36/58
Denver	0/13/34	0/14/35	0/15/36
Phoenix	0/38/61	0/39/62	0/43/64
S.F.	0/37/54	0/38/55	0/41/57
H.K.	0/45/62	0/47/64	0/50/65

(3-5 day forecasts are usually less accurate than short-term forecasts. Trends may be as important as the general forecast.)

Minnesota weather data / Dec. 7-13

City	Weekly temp. avg.	Weekly depart. from normal	High	Low	Total precipitation	Weekly depart. from normal	Heating degree days	Depart. from season normal
Alexandria	26.9	10.1	37	16	.15	0	2337	-276
Crookston	30.5	17.0	39	18	.42	.30	2411	-435
Duluth	29.7	13.5	35	21	.09	-.19	2696	-232
Fairbault	33.1	11.8	46	25	.56	.33	2150	-132
Grand Marais	35.1	15.2	39	28	.21	-.05	M	M
Grand Rapids	29.3	14.7	35	19	.29	.07	2622	-375
Hibbing	28.6	14.7	34	20	.02	-.24	2888	-169
Hutchinson	30.6	11.2	39	22	.23	.06	2219	-221
International Falls	30.0	19.1	36	21	.09	-.13	2797	-368
Minneapolis-St. Paul airport	33.1	11.5	45	24	.56	.37	2053	-217
Morris	27.7	10.0	40	15	.11	-.05	2398	-176
Pipestone	28.8	9.3	40	16	.03	-.13	M	M
Red Wing	36.6	16.7	44	28	.86	.65	1935	-515
Rochester	31.9	10.7	44	22	.61	-.41	2292	-40
St. Cloud	30.3	12.2	42	18	.09	-.07	2386	-174
Winona	35.7	12.6	48	29	.75	.55	1834	-294
Worthington	30.8	9.8	42	20	.44	.27	2356	-21

Panel hears NRA appeal over names of members

Federal appeals panel in St. Paul heard an appeal Monday from the National Rifle Association (NRA) in connection with its challenge of a state law requiring it to disclose a list of its contributors.

The court battle was created by the "Dump Spannaus" campaign during former Minnesota Attorney General Warren Spannaus' unsuccessful gubernatorial primary election bid against Rudy Perpich.

Courts have, in effect, upheld the ruling by former U.S. District Judge John Lord that the Minnesota Ethics and Government Act does not violate the NRA members' constitutional rights of association and free speech. The law requires political groups to register with the state and provide lists of contributors of more than $50.

Gardebring

diagnose, often defies treatment and can drag on for years, leaving its victims thoroughly fatigued much of the time.

The more serious form of the virus received little public attention in Minnesota until Gov. Rudy Perpich's son, Rudy Jr., contracted it about three years ago and went into a prolonged recuperation that kept him largely confined to the governor's mansion. He reportedly has improved recently to the point where he can make trips to the Capitol to do volunteer work for his father's administration.

Gardebring, whose department administers the welfare and medical assistance programs and is one of the largest in state government, is serving in her third major position in the Perpich administration. She previously was chairwoman of the Metropolitan Council and director of the Pollution Control Agency, and has been praised by the governor as one of the most capable people in his administration.

KLUDT: Trail had no testimony, arguments

Continued from page 3B

prostitution district near the eastern end of University Av.

He was arrested June 25 on suspicion of attempting to buy sex. The episode occurred while he was in St. Paul for committee meetings and a special session of the Legislature. He pleaded not guilty and denied offering the woman money or asking for sex. He admitted that he let her get in his car.

Kludt was found guilty after a trial that had no testimony or arguments. The city of St. Paul and Kludt, through his attorney, stipulated that the facts of several police reports relating to his case were correct and asked that a verdict be made on the basis of the reports. On that basis, Grand found Kludt guilty.

The reports say he drove up to the undercover officer in his car, asked if she was a police officer and said he only had $20, which she told him

Gambling

Continued from page 1B

ticket has not yet been pulled.

Most of yesterday's discussion centered on relations between gambling organizations and their landlords.

The board approved rules that would seek reports on why leases are broken or not renewed (often because another gambling organization offers more money for the location) and would require that all rental obligations be specified in leases.

But the proposals to limit tents and stop bartenders from selling pulltabs drew the most comment.

Of 2,000 pulltab licenses, "80 percent would not be able to exist" under the proposal because independent salespeople would cost much more to hire than bartenders, said Paul Wilken, owner of a lounge in Mapleview.

Sandstone man dies in one-car crash

A man from Sandstone, Minn., died Sunday in a single-car accident in Pine County.

Bruce Lee Johnson, 24, was fatally injured when his car went into a ditch about 2:45 a.m. on Grongron Rd. 3/4 miles west of Sandstone, according to the Pine County Sheriff's Department. Johnson, who was alone in his car, was pronounced dead at the scene.

The accident remained under investigation Monday.

HMOs

Continued from page 3B

them believe that we've got a problem," said Florence Husaby, who heads the St. Cloud area health care hearing. She said she and her husband were dropped by PHP and rejected by two other insurance companies because of her emphysema.

They eventually found a new policy — costing $2,400 a year.

But others haven't been even that lucky. Walberg said, "There's an incredible number of people that haven't secured coverage," she told the committee.

"The people we're trying to deal with now are the people with pre-existing conditions. We are having a really difficult time finding coverage," Walberg said. Many insurance plans reject patients with illnesses, or require waiting periods of three to six months before picking up coverage.

Spokesmen for the HMOs, however, said they've taken steps to address

Woman hit by truck in Wisconsin dies

A Maplewood woman died Sunday morning after being hit by a semi-trailer truck near Somerset, Wis. St. Croix County Sheriff's Department officials said Monday.

Jody K. Quinn, 27, was pronounced dead after being transferred by helicopter to North Memorial Memorial Medical Center in Robbinsdale, Minn., nearly three hours after she ticket has not yet been pulled.

Gambling

Continued from page 1B

Most of yesterday's discussion centered on relations between gambling organizations and their landlords.

The board approved rules that would seek reports on why leases are broken or not renewed (often because another gambling organization offers more money for the location) and would require that all rental obligations be specified in leases.

But the proposals to limit tents and stop bartenders from selling pulltabs drew the most comment.

Of 2,000 pulltab licenses, "80 percent would not be able to exist" under the proposal because independent salespeople would cost much more to hire than bartenders, said Paul Wilken, owner of a lounge in Mapleview.

KLUDT: Trail had no testimony, arguments

Continued from page 3B

prostitution district near the eastern end of University Av.

He was arrested June 25 on suspicion of attempting to buy sex. The episode occurred while he was in St. Paul for committee meetings and a special session of the Legislature. He pleaded not guilty and denied offering the woman money or asking for sex. He admitted that he let her get in his car.

Kludt was found guilty after a trial that had no testimony or arguments. The city of St. Paul and Kludt, through his attorney, stipulated that the facts of several police reports relating to his case were correct and asked that a verdict be made on the basis of the reports. On that basis, Grand found Kludt guilty.

The reports say he drove up to the undercover officer in his car, asked if she was a police officer and said he only had $20, which she told him

Woman hit by truck in Wisconsin dies

A Maplewood woman died Sunday morning after being hit by a semi-trailer truck near Somerset, Wis. St. Croix County Sheriff's Department officials said Monday.

Jody K. Quinn, 27, was pronounced dead after being transferred by helicopter to North Memorial Memorial Medical Center in Robbinsdale, Minn., nearly three hours after she

Woman hit by truck in Wisconsin dies

A Maplewood woman died Sunday morning after being hit by a semi-trailer truck near Somerset, Wis. St. Croix County Sheriff's Department officials said Monday.

Jody K. Quinn, 27, was pronounced dead after being transferred by helicopter to North Memorial Memorial Medical Center in Robbinsdale, Minn., nearly three hours after she ticket has not yet been pulled.

Gambling

Continued from page 1B

Most of yesterday's discussion centered on relations between gambling organizations and their landlords.

The board approved rules that would seek reports on why leases are broken or not renewed (often because another gambling organization offers more money for the location) and would require that all rental obligations be specified in leases.

But the proposals to limit tents and stop bartenders from selling pulltabs drew the most comment.

Of 2,000 pulltab licenses, "80 percent would not be able to exist" under the proposal because independent salespeople would cost much more to hire than bartenders, said Paul Wilken, owner of a lounge in Mapleview.

KLUDT: Trail had no testimony, arguments

Continued from page 3B

prostitution district near the eastern end of University Av.

He was arrested June 25 on suspicion of attempting to buy sex. The episode occurred while he was in St. Paul for committee meetings and a special session of the Legislature. He pleaded not guilty and denied offering the woman money or asking for sex. He admitted that he let her get in his car.

Kludt was found guilty after a trial that had no testimony or arguments. The city of St. Paul and Kludt, through his attorney, stipulated that the facts of several police reports relating to his case were correct and asked that a verdict be made on the basis of the reports. On that basis, Grand found Kludt guilty.

The reports say he drove up to the undercover officer in his car, asked if she was a police officer and said he only had $20, which she told him

IN RESPECT TO THE MEMORY
OF OUR PARTNER,
EUGENE P. DALY
July 29, 1943 December 13, 1987

GRAY, PLANT, MOOTY, MOOTY & BENNETT
will be closed until 1:00 p.m.
on Wed., December 16, 1987